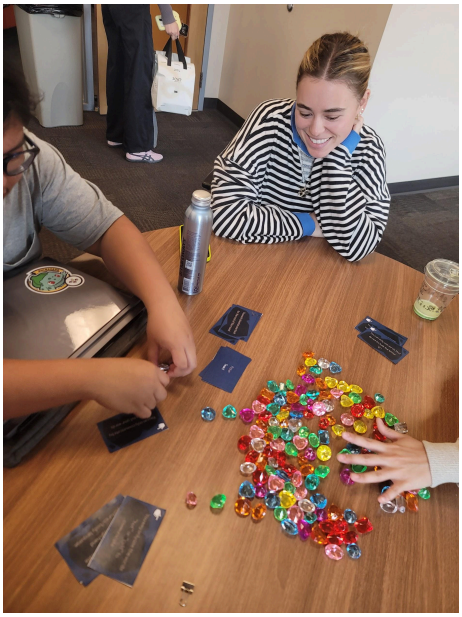
Team Meeting 1 (9/11)

- Set initial experience goal: Frantic teamwork that causes laughter through chaos.
- Decided on 2v2 team set-up and simultaneous play for dynamic fun
- Created Director and Picker roles, separated cards for these roles
- Wrote initial challenge card prompts
- Attendees: Evy, Lisa, Thomas

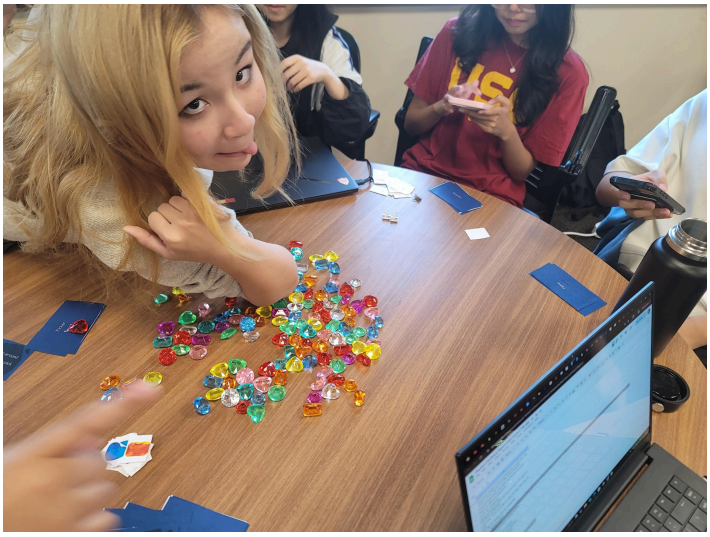
Team Meeting 2 (10/11)

- Held 1st internal playtest
    - Removed/tweaked some cards that were too difficult to complete (Use your nose to move the gems, allowed player to say “yes” with directional challenge, etc.)
    - Edited deck for compatibility between all director and challenge cards
    - Removed drawing extra cards upon win; too difficult to complete
        - Plan to add Fairness Deck to balance winners
    - Removed mechanic of players calling out other players; players were too busy to pay attention to the other team
- Credits:
    - Evy: Designed, printed, & cut temp cards
    - All: Contributed ideas to game design
- Attendees: Evy, Lia, Lisa, Thomas

Playtest 1 (11/11)



- Feedback on unclarity of temp assets -> Make pictures connect more closely with the physical gem
- Confusion on whether play is simultaneous -> Clarify rules
- Credits:
    - Evy: Made updated temp cards
    - Thomas: Bought plastic gem pieces, organized playtest, and wrote game rules
    - Lisa: Wrote playtest survey
    - All: Took active notes during playtest
- Attendees: Evy, Lisa, Thomas



Playtest 2 (11/11)

- Some players reported some cards feeling harder than others -> Work on balancing of play by adding “Fairness Deck”
- Unclarity of individual Solution cards -> Put full solution on one card
- Players had ideas for new cards and reported game was very fun!
- Credits:
    - Thomas: Helped organize playtest
    - Lisa: Helped organize playtest
    - All: Took active notes during playtest
- Attendees: Evy, Lisa, Thomas

Team Meeting & Internal Playtest (11/16)

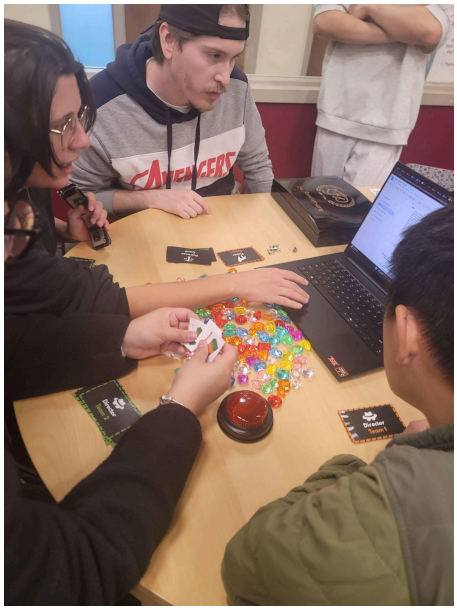
- Implemented Fairness Deck
- Wrote 3 new prompts for Director based on feedback from players & tweaked some challenges
- Took pictures of gems to create better visuals for game
- Decided to include all 3 gems and add labels to Solution Cards
- Changed dramatic premise from mining to robbery -> Funnier, silly, and ties into new buzzer
- Credits:
    - Evy: Created next printed prototypes of cards
    - Thomas: Provided box & buzzers, edited rules
    - All: Participated in brainstorming, writing game prompts, and taking pictures
- Attendees: Evy, Lisa, Thomas

Playtest 3 (11/17)

- Players forgot to use the buzzer -> Emphasize it by placing in the middle of gem pile
- Players forgot to use money tokens to track wins -> Distribute to each team at beginning of play
- Credits:
    - Thomas: Organized playtest
    - Lisa: Completed playtest report
    - All: Took active notes during playtest
- Attendees: Evy, Lisa, Thomas

Playtest 4 (11/19)

- Using elbows to pick up was too difficult -> Replace card
- Feedback that players would like to change roles during game
- No punishment for team getting the solution wrong -> Add some kind of penalty for getting wrong solution, possibly auto-loss?
- Attendees: Evy



Playtest 5 (12/2)

- Director overlooked restrictions on what they are allowed to say -> Emphasize director restrictions in rules
    - Director also tried to point at the gems -> Same issue
- Tested change of “using elbows” card to “using fists” -> Much more doable, minimize player frustration!
- Players like the buzzer and are keeping track of wins
- Attendees: Evy, Lia, LIsa, Thomas
- Credits:
    - All: Took active notes during playtest

Playtest 6 (12/3)

- Players should try to follow the spirit of the card
- Auto-loss mechanic activated
- Had one team do a “comeback” after losing 2 rounds in a row, reported that they felt the game was consistently engaging!
- Received feedback that rules were very clear and easy to follow
- Attendees: Evy, Lia, LIsa, Thomas
- Credits:
    - All: Took active notes during playtest

Playtest 7 (12/3) & Team Meeting

- Played on floor for first time -> Seems to allow more freedom of movement, consider specifying play environment in rules
- Discussed creation of final assets and delegated tasks
- Some Fairness cards are not as effective in slowing the team as others -> Tweaked high five card
- Can be easy to use the same strategy for every round, directors may not feel need to change their strategy
- Attendees: Evy, Lia, LIsa, Thomas
- Credits:
    - Lia: Designed, printed, and cut final art assets. Designed final rules sheet.
    - Thomas: Provided box for game.
    - All: Took active notes during playtest
