Undead Dash Rules

Game Overview

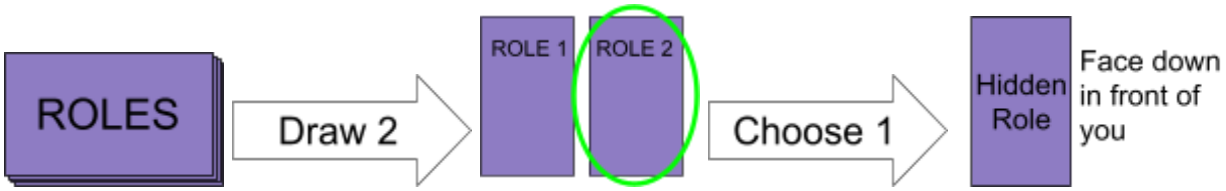
Welcome to Undead Dash! In this game, players control a group of desperate survivors fleeing from a deadly zombie horde. Players take turns playing cards to advance their group of survivors, sometimes assisting other groups, and sometimes sabotaging them. The objective of the game is for each player to get as many of their survivors to successfully escape the zombies as quickly as possible!

Setup

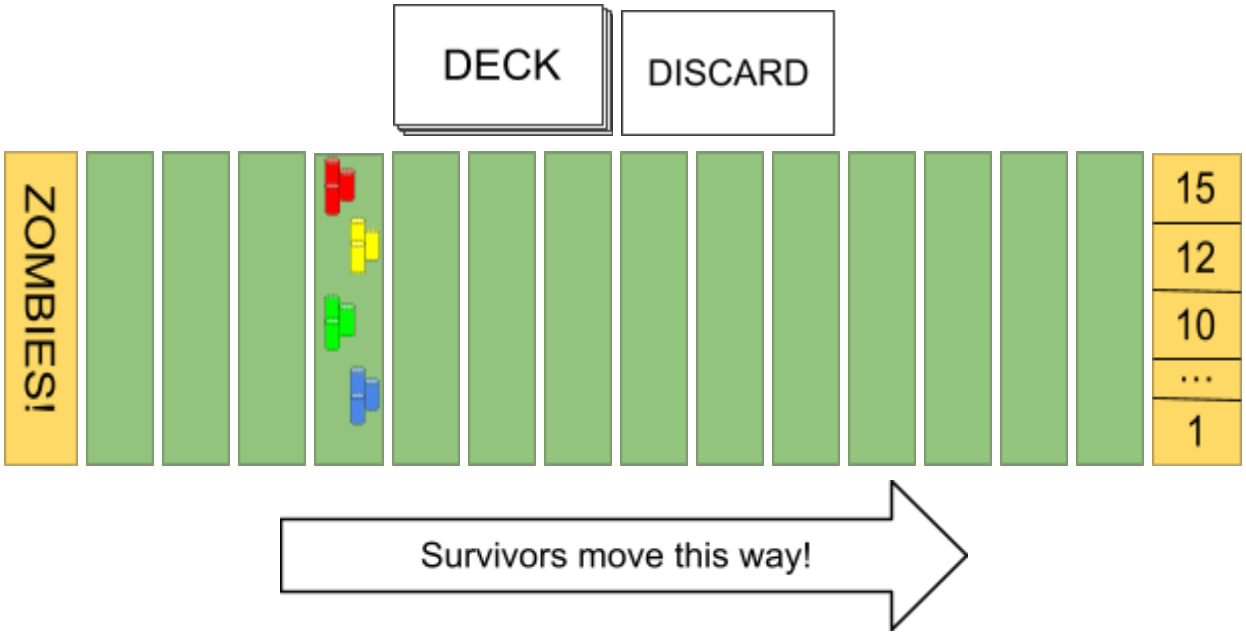
To begin, arrange the fourteen city block spaces in a single row. At one end of this row, place the bunker scoring space. At the other end, place the zombie horde. Each player will then choose a color and place all three survivor tokens of that color on the fourth city block from the horde.

The turn order begins with the player who most recently watched a movie/read a book/played a video game featuring zombies. Play proceeds clockwise from them.

Shuffle the deck of 6 Role Cards and place them face down. Role Cards offer additional points at the end of the game. Beginning with the first player, each player draws 2 Role Cards, secretly selects one and puts it face down in front of them, then returns the role they didn't select to the bottom. Put the other on the bottom. See the Card Index for a full description of each Role Card.



Next, shuffle the deck of 70 survivor cards and place it next to the city blocks. Deal 3 cards to each player. These cards form your hand, which you can look at whenever you'd like. As cards are played, place them face up next to the deck in a discard pile.



The Three Types of Cards

There are three types of survivor cards in Undead Dash: Action Cards, Bonus Cards, and Reaction Cards.

- Action Cards are the most common. These cards will allow you to move survivors, draw cards, and more. You can only play 1 Action Card on each of your turns.
- Bonus Cards are less common. These cards are less powerful than Action Cards, but you can play as many Bonus Cards as you'd like on each of your turns.
- Reaction Cards are the rarest. These cards can be played on anyone's turn, but only in response to another player's card. There is no limit to the number of Reaction Cards that can be played on a turn.

See the Card Index for a full list of cards, their effects, and how many copies of them are in the full deck.

Taking a Turn

There are two simple steps to each player's turn, plus an extra step that happens only after the last turn in each round.

1) Draw a card
   The first thing a player does on each of their turns is draw 1 card from the deck. If there are ever no cards left in the deck, shuffle the pile of discarded cards into a new deck.
2) Play cards
   On each player's turn, they may play up to 1 Action Card and as many Bonus Cards as they'd like. Players may also play Reaction Cards in response to other players' cards. When a player is finished playing cards, they pass their turn.

3) The horde advances!
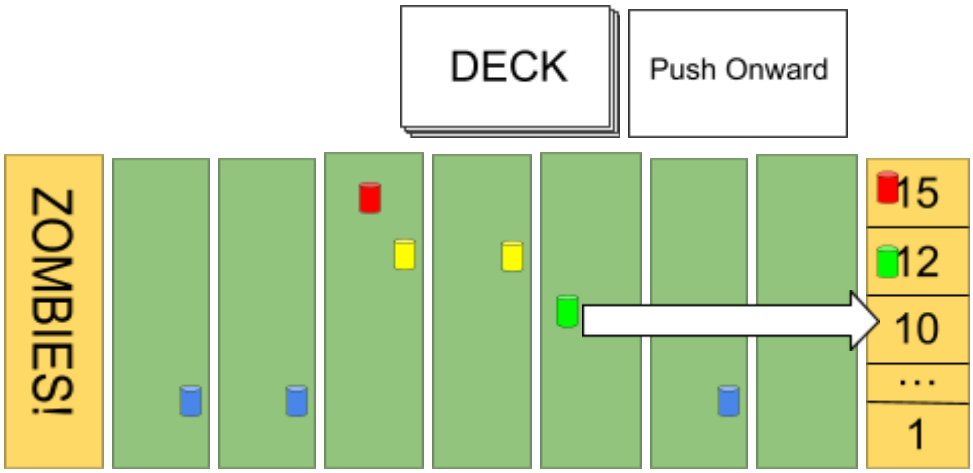
   This step only happens at the end of a round. A round ends when each player has finished one turn, and the first player is about to go again. Now, the zombies move! Remove the city block closest to the zombies. If any survivors are on that city block, the zombies attack them, removing them from the game!

Getting to Safety

When a survivor moves from the city blocks onto the bunker, they've successfully evaded the zombies and made it to safety! Place them on the leftmost available space in the bunker (the one with the highest number). That's the amount of points they'll earn you at the end of the game! Only one survivor can claim each individual space in the bunker. There are a number of available spaces in the bunker equal to twice the number of players (i.e. 3 players means 6 spaces in the bunker, 4 players means 8). The available spaces are always the highest number spaces (the top 6 if 3 players or the top 8 if 4).

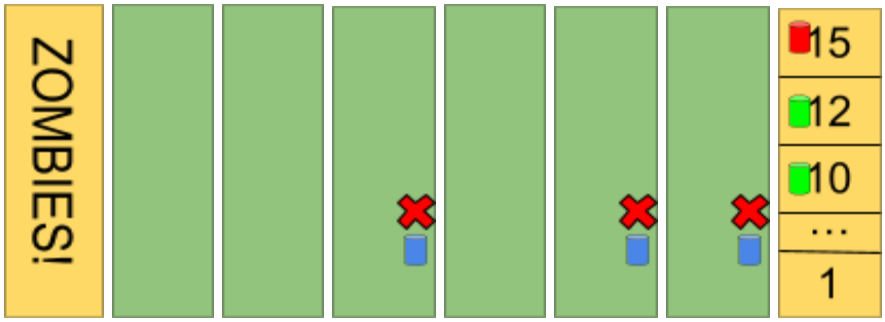


In the above example, the green player played Push Onward, allowing them to move their survivor 3 spaces into the bunker. Because the 15 space and the 12 space are already occupied, they place their survivor into the 10 space.

Ending the Game

When a player has no more survivors on the board, either because they've all escaped or been gobbled up by zombies, they are out of the game. They immediately discard their hand and they take no further turns until the game ends. A player who is out of the game can not be the target of any card effect.

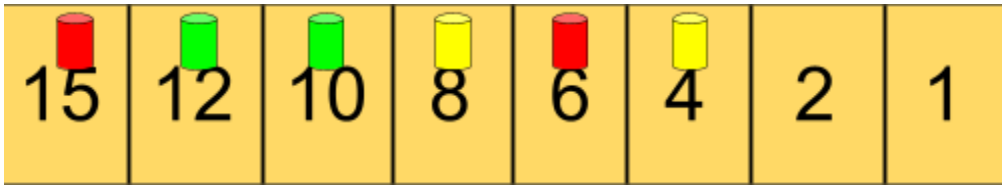
When all the spaces in the bunker are filled, or when only one player still has survivors on the board, the bunker door shuts tight! All survivors still on the board become zombie chow and the game ends.



In the above example, only the blue player has any survivors left on the board, so the bunker closes and their remaining survivors are devoured!

Scoring

At the end of the game, players receive points for each of their survivors that made it to safety based on the order in which they escaped. Each survivor awards points equal to the value printed on the space in the bunker it claimed.



In the above example, the red player earns 21 points, the green player earns 22 points, the yellow player earns 12 points, and the blue player earns 0 points.

After the bunker points have been determined, each player flips their hidden Role Card face-up! Award points to each player based on their Role Card.

Once all the points have been tallied up, the player with the most points wins!

Undead Dash Card Index

Role Cards

Accomplice
Gain 5 points if the player to your right has 2 or more survivors in the bunker.
Your generosity knows no bounds.

Companion
Gain 8 points if you have 2 or more adjacent survivors in the bunker.
You've got a serious codependency issue…

Nemesis
Gain 5 points if the player to your left has 1 or fewer survivors in the bunker.
You're a lifelong hater.

Saboteur
Gain 1 point for each survivor belonging to another player that didn't make it to the bunker.
The fewer, the merrier!

Slowpoke
Gain 5 points if you had the last survivor to enter the bunker.
You always arrive precisely when you intend to.

Team Player
Gain 3 points if all the bunker's spots are filled.
Group hug!

Action Cards

Press Onward! (10 copies)
Move 1 of your survivors 3 spaces.
Sometimes you have to forge your own path.

Dynamic Duo (10 copies)
Move 2 of your survivors 2 spaces each.
Nothing like a good friend at the end of the world.

Helping Hand (5 copies)
Move 1 of your survivors 4 spaces. Then, choose another player. They may move 1 of their survivors 2 spaces.
A bit of compassion goes a long way.

Push Down (5 copies)
Move another player's survivor 3 spaces backwards (they cannot be moved off the board this way). Then, if you did, move 1 of your survivors 1 space.
There are many ways to get ahead of the horde!

NOTE: You do not have to move another player's survivor 3 full spaces in order to move 1 of your survivors 1 space. You simply need to move their survivor at least 1 space back.

Plan Ahead (5 copies)
Draw 2 cards. Then, choose another player to draw 1 card.
If given 10 minutes to cut down a tree, spend 5 of them sharpening your axe.

Steal Supplies (5 copies)
Choose another player to reveal their hand to you. Pick a card from their hand and immediately play it.
The only thing better than finding supplies is taking them from someone else!

NOTE: If the card you picked would have no effect when played, simply discard it. You cannot target a player with this card if they have no cards in their hand.

Strength in Numbers (2 copies)
Move 1 of your survivors 5 spaces. Then, choose another player. They may move 1 of their survivors 3 spaces.
Cooperation is great…in moderation.

All-Out Sprint (2 copies)
To play this card, discard another card from your hand. Then, move 1 of your survivors 5 spaces.
You probably didn't need that, anyways.

NOTE: You must discard another card before you play this card. If this card is negated, you must still discard the card you used to play it.

Follow Footsteps (2 copies)
Choose another player. Move 1 of your survivors up to that player's closest survivor ahead of it. Then, that player draws 1 card.
Why scout ahead when you can get someone else to do it for you?

Get Back Here! (2 copies)
Move another player's survivor back to your closest survivor behind it. Then, move your survivor 1 space.
A surprise from above is never as shocking as one from below.

Bonus Cards

Boost (10 copies)
Move 1 of your survivors 1 space.
Just a little farther!

Trip (5 copies)
Move another player's survivor 1 space backwards.
Whoops!

Reaction Cards

Interference! (4 copies)
Negate the targeted card's effects and discard it.
I don't think so!

NOTE: You can play this card to negate any type of card, including another "Interference!" card.

Copycat (3 copies)
After the targeted card resolves, add it to your hand instead of discarding it.
No points for originality!

NOTE: "Copycat" cannot be played on a card that another player has already played "Copycat" on. A card that has been negated by "Interference" can still be taken by "Copycat".